Mobil Oil Withdraws Annex Request

A letter from the Broadmoor Police Commission to the president of Mobil Oil Corp. apparently has paid off.

The letter asked that the company reconsider its request to annex a Mobil station at Junipero Serra Boulevard and San Pedro Road to Daly City.

The company has done so, the Daly City City Council learned Monday night.

City Manager David Rowe told the council that he received a letter Monday from L. E. McCoskey, Mobil Oil's district sales manager, stating: "We wish to withdraw our request for annexation to the City of Daly City as requested in our letter of Jan. 9, 1978. Thank you for your attention."

The City Council earlier had agreed to sponsor an annexation application to the San Mateo County Local Agency Formation Commission. The application has been set for discussion by LAFCO April 19.

The council, apparently surprised by the company's move, listened to Don Bevilacqua, station operator, as he addressed the matter at a Monday study session.

"I am in favor of the annexation," Bevilacqua said.

Bevilacqua, along with district manager McCoskey, had cited "lower property taxes, improved police and fire protection and improved general services" as reasons for annexation to Daly City.

The Boardmoor Police Commission had countered, that after a long struggle, it had reorganized its police department and needed the tax revenues Mobil produces to support the police district.

Bevilacqua requested that the City Council ask LAFCO for a 60-day continuance on the application. The council agreed to consider the continuance question on its April 10 session.

Bevilacqua said the letter in opposition that we sent to the national president resulted in an order to the district manager "directing him to withdraw the application."

The application to detach from the Broadmoor district and annex to Daly City is the first to go to LAFCO since the commission decided to lift a controversial policy ban on piecemeal detachments from the district.

Previously, the commission had held that the unincorporated area surrounding Colma and Daly City should be annexed as a whole, rather than in small parcels.

Commissioner Joseph Fillo said the Broadmoor commission will continue "to fight any and all detachments from the district."

'Strike Vote' May 1

Contract negotiations between the Daly City-Pacifica chapter of the American Federation of Teachers and the Jefferson Union High School District have reached an impasse and should go to State mediation, union officials said Monday.

According to AFT Local 1481 president Marcy Dunne Ballard, the union was expected to rquest today that a mediator from the State Conciliation and Mediation Service be asked to help in negotiations.

Mrs. Ballard said that after a lengthy AFT meeting Monday, members voted to convene again May 1 for a "no contract, no work in September" vote.

The union president said that of about 140 teachers attending the Monday meeting, 60 percent voted to take the strike vote at the May 1 meeting.

She asserted that of the 40 percent who voted against the bargaining team recommendation, many spoke for a strike vote "sooner than May 1."

Mrs. Ballard said it is possible that the union could act sooner than May 1.

"But we must always be reasonable and responsible," she said. "It is very possible that we will reach agreement without a strike."

At issue, she said, are mostly wages and rights.

She said the district's wage offer is zero increase for 1977-78, 3 percent for 1978-79 and 2 percent for 1979-80.

The union has requested a 7 percent pay hike for 1978-79 and a reopener clause for the following year.

She said the district has not acceded to the union's request for binding arbitration.

Eatery Hours 'Unpalatable'

By NANCY STANCILL

A recommendation to limit the late-night hours of the Mission Street Jack-in-the-Box restaurant gave the Daly City City Council some food for thought Monday, but area residents did not find the proposed solution to noise and litter problems palatable.

Emotions ran high as the council, meeting in study session, heard a recommendation by Councilman Albert Teglia and City Administrative Assistant Ed Lyons to require the 24-hour restaurant not to operate between 12 midnight and 6 p.m.

"By the time the hoodlums get out of there, it will be 1 a.m.," Price Street resident David Franzoia said with anger. "The residents in the area have suffered enough."

Franzoia, who lives behind the restaurant, has complained for some time that late-night patrons disturb the peace and leave litter around the area.

Franzoia later left the meeting muttering loudly as a Jack-in-the-Box official appealed to the council that "we served 20,000 persons during those hours in recent months. Maybe we are a focal point for problems, but maybe we meet a need."

Stella Thompson, district coordinator for Foodmaker and its Jack-in-the-Box outlets, said she has been working with the problems since Jan. 25. She stressed that an earlier, "non-responsive" manager in Daly City had been fired.

Besides limiting the restaurant to an 18-hour operation, Teglia and Lyons recommended that the council require the outlet to "develop and maintain a litter pick-up program with the city, close off the exit to Price Street, maintain visible security personnel and have a test period for 60 days."

City Attorney Albert Polonsky told the council that it would have to set a public hearing to institute changes in the use permit. The council agreed to discuss further action April 10.

Another Price Street resident asked the council to consider instituting an 11 p.m. closing, particularly on weeknights when school children might be disturbed.

However, Clara Haynes, job developer for the city's youth employment program, and Dr. Eddie Welbon, director of the Daly City Community Multi-Purpose and Educational Service Center, asked the council to think twice about cutting out 24-hour operation.

"Five of my young people have been hired by Jack-in-the-Box," Mrs. Haynes said. "There's a young lady here with a 2½-year-old baby. The only time she can work is the midnight shift."

"I'll be willing to give my house to them for one month," Franzoia retorted with heat. "I'll wine them and dine them and let them listen to the noise."

The council also listened to several residents concerning the preliminary plan for a 119-unit condominium project to be located on 6.6 acres between Serravista Avenue and Interstate 280.

Community Development Director Don Fleming said the Planning Commission, in a special meeting Thursday, approved the concept for the Monte Vista development. He said the public hearing on the plan will be

BUILDER DIES
Fred Gellert in his 1972 Post file photo was presenting one of several checks to city of Daly City for recreational purposes.

Builder Fred Gellert Dies

Funeral services for Fred Gellert, builder of the Serramonte Shopping Center in Daly City and some 20,000 homes and many shopping centers in San Mateo and San Francisco Counties, will be at 10 a.m., Wednesday, at the West Portal Lutheran Church in San Francisco.

Gellert, 76, a San Francisco resident, died Sunday at Mary's Help Hospital in Daly City. An evening prayer service will be at 7:30 tonight at Currivan's Chapel of the Sunset in San Francisco. Entombment will be at Woodlawn Memorial Park in Colma.

Gellert and his brother Carl, who died four years ago, began their careers by building homes in the Sunset District of San Francisco in the mid-1920s and prospered.

During World War II the brothers built military facilities around the Bay Area and Northern California and continued their flourishing residential and commercial construction business after the war. Gellert Boulevard in Daly City and South San Frncisco is named after them.

Fred Gellert was chairman of the board of Sunstream Homes, a member of the Olympic Club and the Associated Building Industry of the Bay Area, a life director of the California Builders Council and a charter member of the National Association of Home Builders.

Survivors include his wife Gisela; a son, Fred Jr.; two sisters, Edith Stoven and Marie Simpson, and two grandchildren.

The family prefers contributions to the West Portal Lutheran Church of the School of Ophthalmology Department Fund, Pacific Medical Center, San Francisco.

AAUW To Form D. C. Unit

An organizational meeting to form a branch of the American Association of University Women in Daly City has been scheduled for Saturday.

The meeting will be at 10 a.m. at Coast Federal Savings, in the Serramonte Shopping Center, according to Myra Calkins, president of the San Bruno branch of the AAUW.

The meeting will include a question and answer period by members of the

Robber With Wood 'Bomb' Robs Bank

A man carrying a green plastic lunch box who reportedly held up the Bank of America branch at El Market and Mission streets at about 9:45 a.m. Friday was arrested a few blocks away after a Daly City police sergant had seen his car leave the scene.

The robber had given a hand-written note to the teller at the walk-up window, which read "I have a bomb which will explode this part of the building unless I see your hands. Put all cash in the bag," according to Daly City police.

The man drove away, but Police Sgt. Ralph Warren, who was talking to a citizen nearby, noticed the car just before the police alert was broadcast. Hearing the alert he quickly notified the department of the car's description and a few blocks away Officer George Guido made the stop, assisted by Warren and Officer Louis Donati.

The "bomb" turned out to be a block of wood, police said.

Arrested was Stuart Geddes, 39, of Daly City, who was booked at the Daly City jail on suspicion of armed robbery. Geddes is to appear in Northern District Municipal Court this week for arraignment.

The amount of money involved was not disclosed.

Rowe Watches Project

City Manager David Rowe of Daly City Monday continued for a second time an administrative hearing on whether the city should revoke the North San Mateo County Sanitation District's street excavation permit.

Rowe said that after Monday's hearing he was satisfied, for the time being, that the sanitation district is abiding by the conditions he had imposed on it last Tuesday.

The city served David Gehre, district manager of the sanitation district, with a landmark notice of intent to revoke the permit after a district contractor broke city water mains seven times.

Rowe also took the action more than a week ago after residents and business operators in the Westlake area complained that Detrick Construction Corp. of San Jose is causing nuisances and safety hazards in its work on construction of a $1.8 million trunk sewer line.

A second contractor working for the district, Dalton Construction Co. of South San Francisco, also is working on the line, but was not named.

Rowe said the administrative hearing will be continued indefinitely, subject to reopening on 24 hours notice during the duration of the project. The construction work is expected to last a few more weeks.

'Slow Down' in Rehab Seen

A decision by the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development not to request release of $60 million during the current fiscal year for residential rehabilitation loans will "slow down" Daly City's program somewhat, according to Community Development Director Don Fleming.

However, Fleming noted that according to a letter to the city from Rep. Leo Ryan, D-San Mateo, $125 million for HUD 312 loans is expected to be available by Oct. 1.

The Daly City City Council had approved a resolution several months ago requesting that the $60 million in supplemental appropriations to the loan program be released for cities' use.

However, HUD official Missy Grealy wrote Ryan that "in light of this expected increase ($125 million) and after careful consideration of our budgeting position this year," HUD would not request the release of the $60 million earlier appropriated for the current fiscal period.

Fleming said he is "very disappointed" that more direct loan funds will not be available immediately, but he indicated that the city will continue to process rehabilitation loans until the next HUD funding period.

He said the city is completing work on four housing fix-up loan projects, has six out to bid and four more projects ready to go to bid.

Another 80 rehabilitation loan applications are in various stages of processing, Fleming added.

He said the city will continue to use the $117,000 in Housing and Community Development Act funding it has left for rehabilitation work, but hopes to keep a reserve of $60,000 for "emergencies."

Hansen Dislikes Nametags: Police Badges Problem, Too

Daly City's City Council Monday dropped a short-lived inquiry into the wearing of nameplates by Daly City Police after Police Chief David Hansen reported that he does not favor them.

The council decided to explore the matter when Ernie Pezzola, co-director of the Original Daly City Protective Association, told the council that he thought name identification should be worn.

However, Chief Hansen said Monday he disagrees because the nameplate, worn over the uniform's right side of the chest, "is just another thing to hang on a fence when the police officer is chasing a suspect."

"It's a pretty gaudy uniform," Hansen said of his police officers' getup. "I don't want to add another gaud or bauble."

Hansen said the officer is identified through his number, which is worn on the star badge traditionally hung on the uniform's left side.

He said when officers leave, badges and numbers are re-issued. That's not possible with nameplates.

The chief added that the metal badge gets in the way of police action, too, and that doesn't make him happy, either.

Pezzola persisted, however, that he believes people should know the officers by name, not number.

"If that's a hazard to him, he might as well take off the badge," Pezzola said.

He said police officers in Santa Clara County, Santa Cruz and Capitola wear nameplates.

"This is Daly City," Hansen said in reply. "It's not Santa Cruz or Capitola."

Hansen added pointedly that it wasn't Santa Cruz or Capitola that nominated Pezzola for a recent attorney general's commendation for fighting crime.

The discussion ended.

Jones Added to Broadmoor Force

Daryl D. Jones, who began his law enforcement work with the Daly City Boy Scout Explorer Post in 1973, Monday was appointed a full-time patrolman with the Broadmoor Police Department.

Jones, 23, first came to Broadmoor in 1974 as a part-time dispatcher and technician and was named a reserve officer in late 1976, just before the Broadmoor department temporarily went out of business because of insurance liability problems.

For the past six months Jones has been a reserve with the Hillsborough Police Department. His addition to Broadmoor fills that agency's ranks at the seven sworn officers planned for when the department resumed operations March 1.

Jones is a graduate of College of San Mateo and Golden Gate University, with a degree in electronics and administration of justice. He is single and resides in Daly City.

County Demos in Feud

By BOB HEMINGWAY

A rift has split the ranks of the Democratic party in San Mateo County over endorsement of candidates for the 23-member Democratic Central Committee in the June 6 primary.

Monroe Sweetland, immediate past president of the San Mateo County Democratic Forum, charged today that Rep. Leo J. Ryan has organized a "general conspiracy" to select and endorse a slate of candidates for the committee.

It is an effort, Sweetland contends, by the legislator to "dominate" the central committee.

Not so, stated Joe Holsinger, field representative for Ryan.

Holsinger, who is active in county and state Democratic Party matters, said that he, Democratic Central Committee Chairman Richard Silver and George Corey, a Millbrae attorney, called a meeting Friday at the Villa Hotel in San Mateo in an effort to put together a representative group of candidates who they hope will strengthen the Democratic Central Committee.

The committee, Holsinger said, has been "weak." He noted, however, that following the party's state convention recently in San Mateo County at which reform in the makeup of committee membership was endorsed, a greater number of persons than usual has filed for the central committee.

It is an opportunity, Holsinger said, to select a strong slate of candidates with a wide range of interests to strengthen the committee.

Ryan, he stated, is not involved in the effort.

"In fact," Holsinger said, "Leo thinks I'm crazy for getting this involved."

Sweetland, who attended the Friday breakfast meeting as an "uninvited guest," charged that many incumbents on the committee are being dropped in the new organized endorsement effort — an effort, he said, which is unprecedented on central committees.

The endorsement group is talking of taking out newspaper advertisements and possibly sending out a mailing to some 100,000 Democrats in the county listing the endorsements.

Sweetland said the dissidents "don't intend to roll over and play dead now that we know what their battle plan is."

The endorsement matter will be discussed next Thursday at the central committee meeting at Democratic Headquarters, 141 Borel Ave., San Mateo, beginning at 8 p.m.

Holsinger indicated that the protest by Sweetland is sour grapes.

ent and chief negotiator for the district, confirmed that wage increases and binding arbitration are the major points of disagreement.

Tonini said Monday night that he had not been told formally of the union's decision regarding an impasse, but that he believed the district would be willing to go to state mediation.

"We will go ahead with anything, if it will speed the process up," Tonini said.

He said mediation can begin as early as this week, depending on the mediators' schedules.

Mrs. Ballard said picketing of the district offices "at least once a week" will continue. She said she's not certain that picketing by teachers at school sites will go on, but that it's a decision that will be made by representatives at the sites.

set at the commission's April 11 meeting.

Fleming said the townhouse development, originally planned by SKM Properties of Daly City to include 150 units, was pared down at the Thursday presentation.

However, Serramonte resident Roseann Emerson told the council the proposed development should contain no more than 61 units to have a comparable density to a condominium project recently approved for Hickey Boulevard.

Mrs. Emerson, who said she has 400 signatures on a petition from Serramonte residents, asked the council to consider the noise and traffic problems she contended such a development would create.

"We're known in Daly City for ticky-tacky homes already," she said. "You'll be able to see all these homes from the freeway."

In other matter, the council decided informally in study session:

- To set the proposed 1977 general plan for a public hearing May 22. The plan already has won a recommendation for approval from a Citizens Advisory Committee and the Planning Commission.
- To execute an agreement with San Mateo County to contract for relocation services relating to Mission Street multi-purpose center site acquisition.
- To advertise several upcoming openings on the City Library Board of Trustees for applicants.

Aircraft Noise Topic

A roundtable discussion on the subject of reducing noise at San Francisco International Airport will be held at the Airport Hilton Hotel Friday, beginning at 9 a.m.

Chairing the half-day session will be County Supervisor John Ward. Panelists will include representatives of the Federal Aviation Agency and the airport, plus pilots and state and local officials.

Topics to be covered include: A night curfew at the airport; extension of Runway 1; restriction of aircraft flying over populated areas; and erection of a blast fence at the end of Runway 1.

County Has Openings on 3 Boards, Commissions

Four positions are open on three different boards in San Mateo County — the Mental Health Advisory Board, the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act Council and the Commission on Aging.

The Mental Health board is seeking a physician and a psychiatrist to help advise the county's mental health chief, Dr. Michael Rankin.

CETAC has a position open for a community representative. The board council advises the Board of Supervisors on disbursement of government employment funds.

The Commission on Aging has one seat open. The commission develops programs for senior citizens.

Persons interested in applying for the vacancies are asked to contact the Office of the Board of Supervisors in Redwood City.

Brown Tabs N. County Attorney for Judgeship

John J. Bible, a San Bruno attorney in private practice for the past 15 years, has been appointed a San Mateo County Superior Court judge by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., it was announced Friday.

The appointment closely followed a decision by the state Supreme Court that the name of Redwood City attorney Lois Scampini, who had been seeking the job, would not be allowed on the ballot.

Bible, 54, a resident of 2110 Rosewood Drive, San Bruno, is a Democrat. He is a partner in the Millbrae law firm of Bible, Corey, Henson and Orton.

He will replace retiring Judge W. Howard Hartley in the $49,166 a year office.

Bible said today he probably would be seated on the bench within 30 days, after making legally required financial disclosures and winding up private law practice.

He said he had applied for the position some six months ago, when Judge Hartley announced his retirement.

Bible has been active with the Lions Club in San Bruno and around the Peninsula and has never run for political office. He and his wife Barbara have been married 24 years and have no children.

Although Bible has not been politically active, his law partner, George Corey, is an activist in Democratic county politics.

"I wish Mr. Bible all the luck in the world," Miss Scampini said this morning from her San Mateo home.

Miss Scampini had filed nomination papers for the judgeship Feb. 24, four days before Judge Hartley retired from a term scheduled to end in January of 1979.

Cities Seem to Feel Things Getting Too Loose

Workers' Comp Controversy

By TERRY DAVENPORT

A Napa fish and game warden, Karl Lund, and his female companion, both scantily clad, were found dead in his official car, the interior of which had been converted to a bed. The coroner attributed their deaths to carbon monoxide poisoning.

A workers' compensation judge ruled that there was no policy forbidding Lund from having company while on duty.

Lund's widow and three minor children were awarded death benefits.

Richard Evans, a Pacifica fireman, pulled his Achilles' tendon while playing baseball with other city employees. Since he was on call at the time, his injury was deemed compensible under workers' compensation.

After he went to work as a training officer for the Anchorage Fire Department, Evans received a disability retirement from the Pacifica Fire Department.

Former San Mateo County Supervisor Jean Fassler was awarded $19,000 in disability benefits and past medical costs by a workers' compensation judge, substantiating her claim that a back injury had been aggravated by sitting through long board meetings.

These are just a few of many cases that show how workers' compensation benefits are becoming more liberal and costing public agencies more money.

The concept of workers' compensation has broadened so much that there are work disincentives built into the system. For example, a police officer who receives full pay while away from work on temporary disability actually receives 20 per cent or more than usual in take-home pay because the money is not subject to income taxes.

The oldest form of workers' compensation dates back 5,000 years to the Code of Hammurabi, which said employers were liable for any accidents that befell their employees at work.

Workers' compensation was widely discussed in this country in 1908 when President Theodore Roosevelt urged state governments to follow the federal government's example of providing workers' compensation coverage for federal employees.

At that time, workers' compensation reforms were necessary. In civil suits, the burden of proof rested upon the employee, who had to show that an unsafe condition at work had caused his injury. The employer argued that the employee had been negligent. Employers seldom lost.

State commissions formed to study workers' compensation could not trace most industrial injuries to anyone's fault. In the concept of no-fault liability that evolved, employers were assigned the responsibility of paying for on-the-job injuries in return for the employee's loss of his right to sue the employer for negligence. Workers' compensation was one of the first major forms of social legislation.

Insurance became a requirement for nearly all employers. In California, the State Compensation Insurance Fund was created in 1914 to guarantee that liability insurance for workers' compensation claims would be available at the lowest possible cost.

The state fund competes in the free market with other insurance companies and is not supported by tax dollars. It is the only insurer available to local governments, whose alternative is to be self-insured. For public agencies, being self-insured is the same as being legally uninsured since they are not required to keep reserve funds to pay workers' compensation claims.

There are five types of benefits available under workers' compensation:

• Medical Treatment — Payment of medical, surgical and hospital costs for an injured employee.

• Vocational Rehabilitation — Retraining that the worker may receive if the injury prevents him from returning to his regular job.

• Temporary Disability — Payments to which the employee is entitled while he recovers from an injury.

Copters Are Too Small

San Mateo County's two sheriff's helicopters have been used to catch burglars and others in the act several times and have been used in frequent rescues, but they also have sometimes been unable to save lives because they are too small, a pilot told a San Mateo audience Thursday.

Speaking to more than 100 members of the Peninsula chapter of Footprinters, Mike Preston told how one woman victim died. His co-pilot, Keith Kofead, showed a slide picture of the scene in a meeting at the San Mateo American Legion Hall.

Preston explained that the two helicopters are not large enough to carry out a full-size victim. In a recent case in which the pilots discovered lost Scouts deep in the woods, he said, they stripped the copter and were able to carry out one boy at a time.

The copters are too small to carry floats (as the Coast Guard copters do) that would enable them to land on the water in rescues, Preston added.

Success has crowned much of their other work, he indicated, since then Sheriff Earl Whitmore first set them up during his administration.

The pilots have discovered numerous fires in rural areas and in the cities, have interrupted burglaries, have located many lost or stranded people along the coast and in wilderness areas, and have gone far out to sea to locate disabled craft in time to direct ocean-going rescue ships to them.

As he spoke, Kofead showed picture examples of what the pilot was saying. A camera is part of the standard equipment so that evidence and a record is kept.

Preston said that in one case they spotted a pair of tennis shoes going through a window.

The crews keep constant alert for a screen off a house, a door open where it should not be, skylights open at night and other evidences of burglary.

Some buildings, he said, have flashing roof lights, visible at great distances in the air, hooked to burglar alarms.

Preston reeled off impressive figures of helicopter discoveries. There were 100 stolen cars found by copter crews last year, he said. Seventy-two fires were reported.

In many cases, the helicopter report preceded any other by several minutes.

The pilot told of numerous joint exercises in crime chases and apprehensions.

All of the crew are police officers who later were trained for helicopter duty. In one case, when a remote fire threatening a hospital was discovered, he said, the pair radioed the fact, then landed to contain the fire until help arrived.

Former Hillsborough Police Chief Russ Fisher swore in 15 new members of the Footprinters in a good-humored initiation ceremony, a high point in a membership drive of which Eugene Schmidt of Belmont is chairman.

The Footprinters, originally an all-law officer fun group, admit and encourage Peninsula businessmen to join and work in a close relationship for better law enforcement.

Past president Lon Curtis, now the chapter's secretary-treasurer, directed the monthly meeting. Curtis notes that many attorneys, judges and leading civic-minded people have held office in the nearly 50 years of the organization's history.

It sponsors scholarships at College of San Mateo for those interested in police science, helps underprivileged children and has other charities, he noted.

Volunteer Bureau Said 'Outstanding'

An "Outstanding Agency" award from the San Mateo Foundation was given to the Volunteer Bureau of San Mateo County March 29 in connection with retirement ceremonies honoring Volunteer Bureau Executive Director Marjorie "Midge" Bolton.

The award was presented by Mynderse Van Hoesen in recognition of the bureau's efforts in volunteer recruitment and referral, serving some 170 public and private agencies.

Mrs. William O. Hetts, president of the Volunteer Bureau board of directors, accepted the award and a $2,000 grant that accompanied it.

Mrs. Van Hoesen commented that the award presentation was made at Mrs. Bolton's retirement to give added recognition to her career as a leader of the volunteer group.

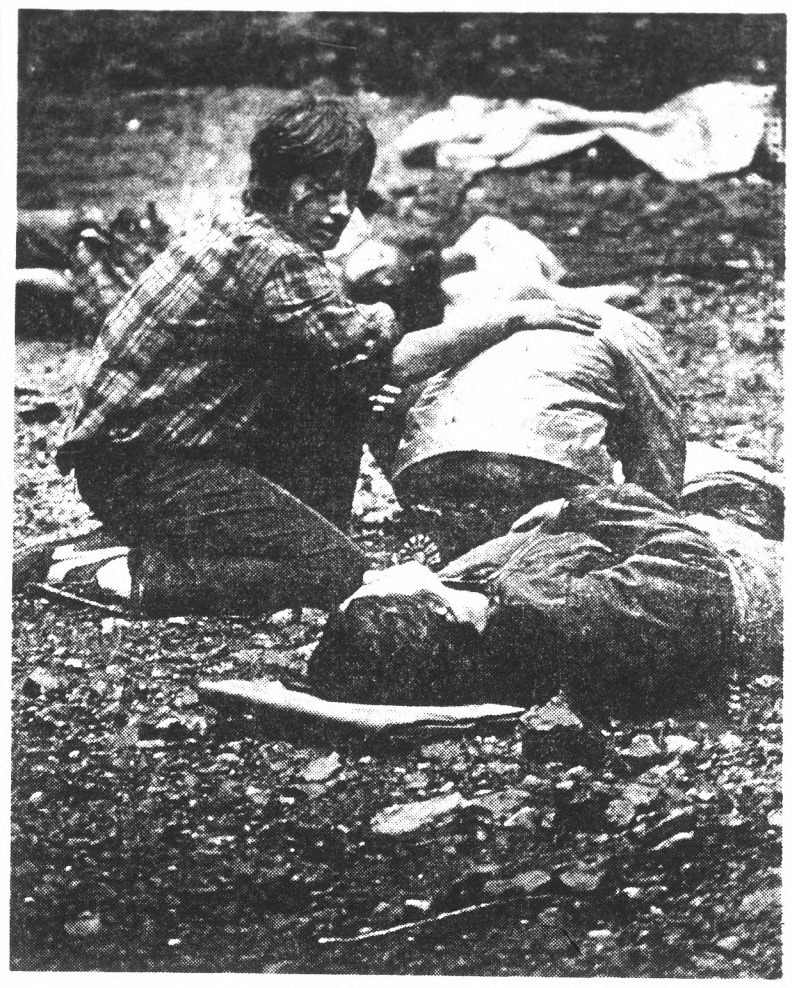
RUSHING TO THE WRECKAGE (Photos by Mike Spinelli)

Swarms of emergency vehicles, ambulances, fire trucks and four-wheelers rushed into the San Francisco Watershed area behind Crystal Springs Golf course Friday during a disaster drill involving all the rescue workers and organizations of the area. Cold rain and winds, not a scheduled part of the drill, added realism and discomfort to the exercise.



HELPING EACH OTHER

Practice victims of a simulated disaster in the San Francisco watershed area Friday comforted each other after being removed from a bus serving as the "fuselage" of a supposedly downed airship. The complex exercise was a test of disaster preparedness and coordination among more than 30 agencies, including all San Mateo county fire departments, police, ambulances, hospitals and communications services.

'Crash' Was Realistic

Weather Ideal For Exercise

By GEORGE GOLDING

The rainy cold weather was ideal for a disaster Friday as hundreds of San Mateo county rescue workers and emergency volunteers rushed to a simulated aircraft crash in the brush-covered hills west of Crystal Springs golf course.

Dry dirt roads turned to sloppy mud as fire trucks and ambulances squeezed through the narrow turns past radio trucks and command cars.

Although supposedly unscheduled, the disaster had been planned so far ahead that most rescue workers appeared in raincoats, ponchos or slickers.

Most of the "victims" at a main crash site, however, were not so well protected.

In T-shirts and cotton clothing, made up with "bleeding wounds" and blackened to simulate burns and smoke, they lay on a patch of gravel at the bottom of a narrow side canyon, and screamed.

"Help me, help me," screamed one girl as a dozen or more official observers stood by, unmoving.

The screaming persisted for 15 or 20 minutes as rescue workers began to make their way to the simulated burning fuselage of a downed 747, and began hauling victims out one by one.

The screaming could be heard hundreds of yards away through the wet woods where a volunteer make-up man folded his equipment and stole away. His part in the disaster was early done.

Along the watershed's twisting roads, however, the drill was just beginning. At 2 o'clock, a message from the San Francisco Airport tower simulated a report that a large aircraft was down.

Helicopters from the Coast Guard and sheriff's office moved in, circling the lakes under a ceiling of rifted clouds.

"I can't locate any wreckage," radioed one 'copter pilot, as a billow of smoke poured up from the trees under his whirling blades.

The simulated wreckage was well hidden in the thick cover of trees and brush.

As a practical matter, the simulated wreckage was located on access roads, to prevent rescue volunteers from destroying the watershed foliage and tangling themselves in poison oak.

Hundreds of volunteers and professional rescue workers took part under overall direction of the San Mateo County Civil Disaster Office.

Headquarters was first the California Department of Forestry firehouse at Hillcrest in Belmont, but as the disaster developed, a working command post grew where a side road intersected Sawyer Camp Road.

At the Millbrae entrance to Sawyer Camp, a San Francisco Water Department official sat in his car listening to radio messages of the drill, and commenting that he had not yet been officially informed of any activity.

"I have not been told anything is going on," he said, as a Hillsborough fire truck wheeled into the watershed and trailed several miles down Sawyer Camp Road.

"The overriding purpose of the drill is to make our mistakes now, rather than in an actual emergency," the official scenario stated.

Capt. Edward Temple of the Department of Forestry called the exercise a successful learning effort.

He said first Medevac teams arrived at the simulated crash site within 14 minutes of the first alarm.

"If it had been a real crash, I think we would still have done very well," he said.

Capt. Temple said Dr. Donald Chew, the county's leading disaster preparedness physician, had commented that "triaging" at the scene was not as well done as it should be.

"My main objective was to get people out first, and let the medical people farther back from the crash triage," or divide victims up in terms of needed care, he said.

"I think we learned a lot."

Of course, mistakes were made, several observers pointed out.

Observers reached the simulated disaster scene far ahead of the rescue crews. Rescuers at some points were not on the job in sufficient numbers early in the disaster to make their efforts effective. There were misunderstandings about routes of approach to the scene, and confusions on the spot.

The major problem, according to one official observer, was that rescue people arrived at the scene far too late to save people who might be trapped in burning plane wreckage.

"Again, that's the sort of thing that might well happen in a real disaster. That's what we're trying to prevent."

Every ambulance company in the county, every fire department, the Highway Patrol, the sheriffs office, hospitals, Red Cross, FAA, the Radio Amateur Civil Emergency Service — everyone — seemed to be involved in trying to respond realistically to the situation.

The county coroner's truck arrived within an hour after the simulated plane enacted its make-believe crash, adding a somber note to the already gloomy and soppy rescue drill.

Highway Patrol cars blocked roadways as far from the simulated crash as the intersection of Polhemus and Crystal Springs Roads, directing people away from the path of rescue vehicles.

Sheriff's cars blocked Interstate 280 off-ramps at Black Mountain Road, and Hillsborough police blocked the Black Mountain Road entrance to their city.

The effort spread in widening circles all over the county, as fire trucks from outlying areas moved in to stand by for those called to the "crash."

Midway during the exercise, three San Francisco fire engines were called out of the committment, to respond to arson fires blossoming in their own city.

At one point, ambulances stood idly by within yards of the main crash site's victims, simulating being unable to get to the victims because of the terrain. Within moments, a city fire truck wheeled up the small hillock to the site.

At the main wreckage site, the star actors were volunteers from College of San Mateo, in jeans and shirts and other soiled and ruined clothing, screaming and "bleeding" while observers counted the time until rescue workers appeared.

Farther up the opposite hill, where San Francisco Water Department families live in near isolation, youngsters of those families stood in a grassy field, watching the circus-like scene entranced.

They had never seen such a sight in their lives.

In the words of one firefighter at the command post, "hopefully, they never will."

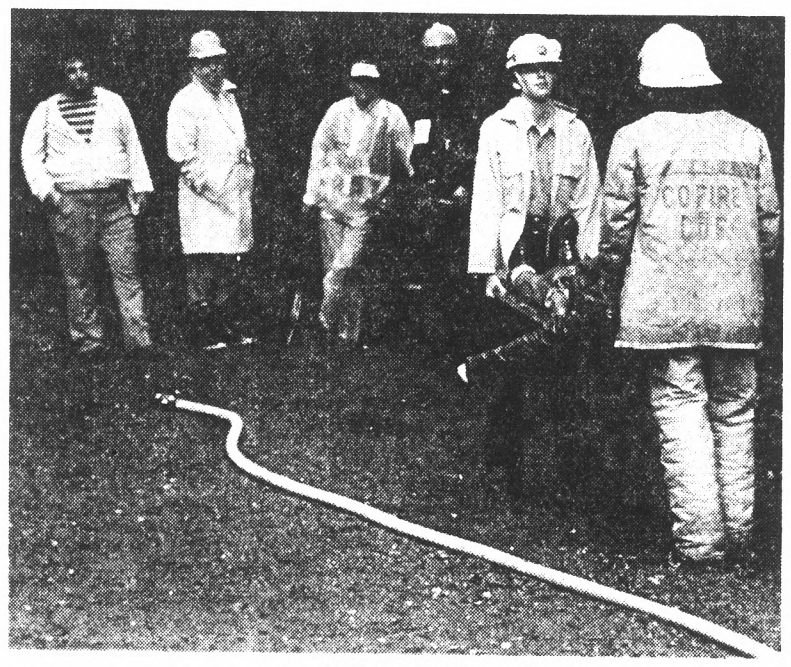
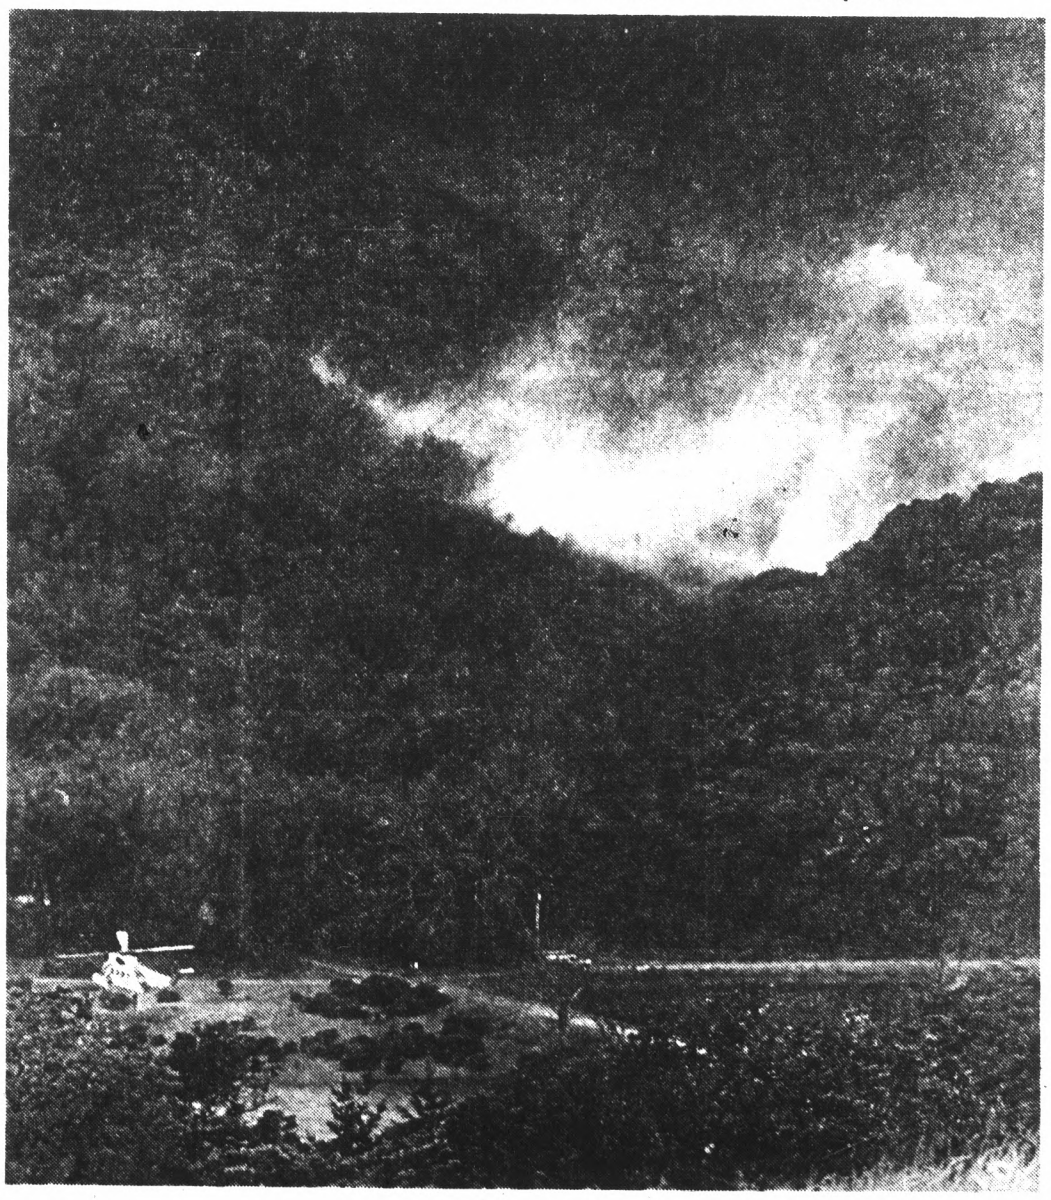
Everyone Seemed Involved In Drill



CARRYING A VICTIM

Two rescue workers haul a "crash victim" away from simulated burning wreckage during disaster drill Friday afternoon. Burning oily waste sent billows of dark smoke into overhanging trees while magnesium was burned to add white smoke simulating airplane incineration.



RISING FROM CRASH SITE

White smoke drifts from trees along the west side of Crystal Springs Lake Friday at start of a simulated "downed aircraft" disaster drill, set into motion when San Francisco Airport Control Tower reported it had "lost" a 747 off its radar scopes. At lower left, Coast Guard helicopter searches area opposite Crystal Springs Golf Course. "Wreckage" was also located higher on the ridge.

Samuel Chandler

The other day two eighth graders were talking. One said "I went to see a play with my dad, ya know? It was about two guys who lived together. One of them, you know, was in love with a girl named Julia, while the other guy hated women because they took him away from his studies. Well, the guy that hated girls had to go on a trip and this made his roommate so lonely, ya know, he decided to write to his girlfriend, Julia. Then he gave the letter to her maid to deliver.

"But Julia was playing hard-to-get, you know, and tore the letter up and goes 'get out of my room and don't come back 'til I call you.' Then she tried to paste the letter back together 'cause she really digged the guy.

MEANWHILE, Julia's father sent her lover to the same town his roommate had gone to. And when he got there he found that his friend had fallen in love with the daughter of the Duke of the town. But the Duke was trying to get his daughter, whose name was Sylvia, to fall in love with Julia's boyfriend, ya know. Somehow Julia heard about this, so she went to the same town, ya know, and when she got there the Duke tried to make her fall in love with the guy that was her boyfriend's roommate. It all got very complicated with everybody fighting everybody else until it all got straightened out in the end, and it was a real good play."

After hearing the story, the other eighth grader said "Man, I'd like to see that. It sounds like something Barbra Streisand would play in."

Do you recognize the play? It was Shakespeare's "The Two Gentlemen of Verona." Although it was produced 400 years ago, it seems to appeal to young people with the impact of the latest TV movie.

THIS illustrates a fact noticed by librarians and teachers throughout the country. Young people have discovered Shakespeare. Those teenagers who can wade through Shakespeare's 16th century English are learning that his stories are interesting and his poetry is appealing. Those who cannot negotiate his poetry reading the stories he told from "Tales From Shakespeare," by Charles and Mary Lamb (Doubleday, $1.49) or from Marchette Chute's "Stories From Shakespeare" (World, paper $1.75).

Both titles tell Shakespeare's stories in beautiful, simple prose; both outline the plots of the plays so the reader knows exactly what is going on at all times. Ms. Chute introduces each story with a few simple teasers, and during her retold version includes some of the most beautiful and most important verses just as Shakespeare wrote them.

Charles and Mary Lamb, who wrote their book in 1806, render each tale as a short story with the hope that each selection will give young readers "little foretastes of the great pleasures that awaits them in their elder years, when they come to the rich treasures from which these small and valueless coins (tales) were extracted."

READERS of Shakesppeare learn what treasures they are. They learn, as Will Durant wrote, "Shakespeare creates a world with every play, and, not content, he fills imagined empires, woods, and heaths with childlike magic, scurrying fairies, awesome witches and ghosts. His imagination makes his style and turns all ideas into pictures, all abstractions into things felt and seen."

Now is a good time to read the plays of Shakespeare.

Other chairmen are Carol Booher and Virginia McKeag, knick-knacks; Ruth Goan, the New Room; Gerry Carthew, furniture and books; Paula Broucaret, cashier; Virginia McKeag, calling; Judy Swope, posters and flyers; Kathy Fossum, youth booth; Ruth Ellen Stewart and Pearl McGlaughlin, tea room; and Marion Wohlwend, apron sewing.

CITIZEN AWARDS

Ramblings

By STEVE KAUFMAN

It's been a busy week since returning from the Spring Break. With only two weeks left until the completion of the third quarter, many students are working extra hard to bring up or maintain their grades. Hang in there!

It's been a week of meetings. The Auto Club, Service Club, Community Service/Cadet Teachers Club, Planning Council, and Christian Fellowship all had meetings.

The San Francisco Giants, in cooperation with a San Francisco newspaper, is offering free Giants tickets to designated games for students with a 3.5 or better GPA (grade point average). This event is called "Top Student Ticket Program", and is including Westmoor this year.

THE TICKETS are for reserved seats and the eligible students will receive three pairs of tickets for three different games, for a total of six free tickets. The student can choose three of 10 different games. I had walked into the counselors hall where the forms were being given out and found a long line of students inquiring about the details. All information is available at Mr. Simon's office in the counseling hall. So if you've got a 3.5 or higher GPA, go out to the ballgame free!

The Block "W" Club had its famous awards banquet March 29, in the school cafeteria. The dinner was to honor all athletes who have earned athletic awards and participated in recent sports. Congratulations to all who have won awards.

Students who are capable of teaching swimming to beginners and wish an opportunity to work with the mentally retarded can take part in a program aimed at helping retarded children swim. Mr. Ramage, one teacher at Westmoor who organizes students to work with the retarded and handicapped, has all the information.

MR. HYDE, the co-ordinator counselor for job placements for Westmoor students, recently accepted applications from students from low-income families who wish to find a summer job. Good luck to all who applied.

Hope all goes well for Kathy Mallinger, a science teacher who I had as a freshmen. She is six months pregnant. She is still teaching and is gaining considerable weight. I asked her what she and her husband Mark wanted, a boy or a girl. "We don't care, as long as it's healthy," she said. Congratulations, mommy!

The school's radio station, KRAM, is offering a unique opportunity for students who are interested in a radio broadcasting experience. Many of the dejays presently on the air are seniors who will graduate in June. Thus, there will be many openings for students to fill. Besides running the station during lunchtime, the students will have the opportunity to earn their FCC 3rd class radiotelephone license with broadcast endorsement. Anyone interested should see Mr. Decoito, the electronics teacher, for their reservation.

WESTMOOR'S Music Department, in co-operation with McDonald's at 89th Avenue and Junipero Serra Boulevard sponsored a fund-raising event recently. All money made between the hours of 3:30 p.m. and 5:30 p.m., March 27 was donated to the department. A good sum of money was made as the band played for customers as they ate. Keep up the good work!

Students who park their cars in the school parking lot recently were issued a warning in the daily bulletin. It seems that students have been parking their cars in spots other than the one assigned to them. If this is violated three times the car will be towed away at the owner's expense. Be careful.

Westmoor's first disco dance is this Friday night from 8 to 11. Tickets are still being sold for $1.50 with a student body card and $2 without. The John Travolta look-a-like contest is on with three couples signing up. Best of luck to them. Many students are looking forward to the dance. It's going to be great.

CONGRATULATIONS to the Junior Class. It won the Spirit Week competition and the $50 donated by the Westmoor PTA. This is a great achievement and the whole class should be congratulated for its hard work and efforts.

I had a talk with Steve Boides, the student body president, who went to Washington on the Close-Up program during the Break. He reflected his feelings and experiences of the trip. He had some mighty interesting comments to make.

"The main reason I went was to get an inside look at the government and how it works. I learned many things I previously didn't know. I developed many close relationships with some of the 200-plus kids from the Bay Area who went.

"IT WAS a hard schedule. The high excitement was maintained throughout the trip. We were up at 6:30 a.m. and went to bed at about 11:30 p.m."

He said when he got there the kids were split up into 11 separate workshops which met at least once a day. There were at least two seminars a day. Subjects covered mainly foreign and domestic politics and the military. "We talked with lobbyists and many important dignitaries. And of course we visited all the main buildings of Capitol Hill — the Pentagon, the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials, the Dirksen and Russell buildings, and many more. I didn't get a chance to see the capital however.

"We went to the Supreme Court. That was a highlight of the trip. The building is perfectly symmetrical. It gives me a feeling of perfection, like to judges couldn't make a mistake! I'll tell you, that's the closest to heaven I've ever seen'"

"WE ALSO went to Arlington National Cemetery. I had been there already, so some of the feeling was lost. However, when I read the words of John F. Kennedy on his tomb, it was spine-tingling. It makes you feel like an American.

One of the high points of my trip also was visiting the Senate. My idea of a 100 dignified gentlemen debating on the floor in an organized manner with many orations such as we read about in our American Institutions textbooks. This was obviously not the case.

"The subject on the floor was an amendment to the Panama Canal treaty. There were five senators on the floor debating. The other 95 were in the Senate cloakroom discussing with each other how they would vote. When the debating was done an aide would go into the room and inform all that it was time to vote. Then most of them would just walk in, cast their vote and either leave or go back into the room. Some 30 senators congregated in front of the speaker. They were very noisy. In fact, George McGovern was asked to return to the cloakroom because he was too noisy. I saw Senator Hayakawa vote against the issue. However, when he saw that his vote would not be needed to pass the measure and it would indeed pass, he went up to the speaker and changed his vote. That stunned me. He changed it to please the people in his community."

"AT MOST, half a dozen senators were seated at their proper seats. The others there were just randomly dispersed. It was a strange experience."

"Overall, it was a very worthwhile experience. People I met had a great impact on me. I learned about my government and got an interesting insight on it. Even though many of us are down on the government and how it's run, it's still the most efficient and the best around. It has its faults and those faults we have to work on."

I'M GLAD Steve had such a good time and I urge any students interested in going on the trip next year to do so. It's a good program and I'm proud that Westmoor is a part of it.

Any sophomore or junior may run for an office, but must maintain a "C" average.

Several of the Polynesian students of Serramonte are going to have a Polynesian Show May 26. There will be dancing and singing to music from the various islands of Polynesia.

ATTENTION SENIORS: Here are some important dates to remember. May 27 is the Junior/Senior Prom at the Hyatt Regency in San Francisco from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m. The theme is "Always and Forever," sung by Heatwave. Tickets are $12.50 per couple.

June 2 is the senior picnic at Blackberry Farm. The price is $2.50.

June 9 is Grad Night at Disneyland. The price is $70, which includes air transportation to and from Disneyland and admission to the park. If you wish to eat, that's extra.

The profits from the carnation sale March 17 went to Muscular Dystrophy. Some 725 carnations were bought and $111.10 was donated to Jerry's kids. The Executive Board would like to thank all of the students and faculty who purchased carnations.

THE SPRING dance has been changed from April 14 to April 21. The popular 11-member band "Genesis" will perform. Tickets are on sale during 4th and 5th period lunch in the cashier's office. The advance ticket price is $2 with a student body card and $2.50 without. Tickets will be $3.50 at the door.

This Friday night, Serramonte will have its Talent Show. The show is under the direction of Daria Wiggins and will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the gym. Tickets are $1 in advance and $1.50 at the door. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Congratulations to Loretta McNeil for placing fourth in the fine arts competition by Bank of America. Loretta was also the March student of the month for the Daly City Exchange Club. Keep up the good work, Loretta!

Workers' Comp

based on about 2/3 of his regular earnings.

• Permanent Disability — Compensation that a worker receives if a permanent injury results. Life pensions are granted for some permanent disabilities.

• Death Benefits — Payments made to dependents based on their level of dependency. A widow with one or more dependent children is entitled to receive $55,000.

City employees also are eligible for substantial disability retirement benefits. Some cities have their own retirement funds, but most belong to the Public Employees Retirement System.

Now the burden of proof in these cases rests on the employer.

The law also spells out special advantages for public safety personnel, saying, "Hernia, heart trouble or pneumonia so developing or manifesting itself . . . shall be presumed to arise out of and in the course of employment."

Although the medical field has not conclusively proved that public safety jobs contribute to these three ailments, the law gives employees the benefit of the doubt. "Heart trouble" has been interpreted through the years to include heart attacks, hardening of the arteries, high blood pressure and even some congenital heart diseases.

Another benefit safety officers receive is full pay when they are on temporary disability leave. This benefit also is written into the law.

Many cities in California have extended full-pay temporary disability benefits to other city employees. Thus, a city clerk who has twisted an ankle may be entitled to full pay while off the job.

Because the physical requirements of their jobs are so rigorous, safety officers find it easier to qualify for retirement benefits than other city workers. For example, a policeman who injures his index finger so badly that he can't fire a gun may be termed "permanently disabled" and eligible for a disability retirement, as happened in the case of a Santa Clara police officer.

Some safety officers seem to be taking advantage of the system, such as the Oakland police officer who drank lots of coffee to stay awake during the nightshift and aggravated an ulcer. He received a 3/4 disability retirement.

One authority in workers' compensation law, Tom Brown, calls this the "burn-out syndrome." He said, "Safety personnel start out young and idealistic and have a real strong desire to perform the service. After a few years of not getting promoted, they start getting burned out. They see a lot of the worst part of our society, day in, day out, and decide they want to get out. So instead of quitting and getting out like most people do, they go for a disability retirement."

Private companies also complain of the liberal awards made in workers' compensation cases. In fact, Uniroyal announced in February that it was closing a plant and eliminating 2,500 jobs in Los Angeles, claiming they did so primarily because of the high cost of workers' compensation claims and fees.

But public agencies have experienced bigger increases in costs than private companies, largely due to the special benefits allowed public safety employees.

By far the greatest expense is due to "cumulative trauma" claims. According to one 1977 study in California, 37 per cent of all claim costs were due to cumulative trauma cases.

The 1959 case of Beveridge v. the Industrial Accident Commission developed the concept of cumulative trauma — that is, injuries due to gradual wear and tear on the body.

In that case, a 39-year-old electrician alleged that he sustained an injury on the job that aggravated a pre-existing back injury.

The workers' compensation referee (now called "judge") found that the electrician's natural aging process contributed more to his injury than the injury at work.

His decision was overturned in court by a judge who wrote, "We think the proposition irrefutable that while a succession of slight injuries in the course of employment may not in themselves be disabling, their cumulative effect in work effort may become a destructive force."

This liberal interpretation has encouraged a wide range of claims based on gradual injuries, including ones charging mental and emotional suffering on the job.

In one case, a police officer from Torrance became an alcoholic and was fired from his job for unprofessional conduct. A workers' compensation judge ruled that he had "sustained injury arising out of and in the course of employment in the form of an emotional disorder" — in other words, alcoholism.

A San Francisco police officer who decided his job was "too scary" filed a claim based on mental trauma. At age 28, he was awarded a disability pension at half-pay for life.

Another landmark decision was the case of Soby vs. the Workers' Compensation Appeals Board in 1972.

Daniel Soby served for 23 years as a fireman for the city of Richmond, Ca. He retired on May 30, 1968, on a physical disability consisting of defects in vision and hearing. Nearly 16 months later, he suffered a heart attack.

The workers' compensation judge granted him temporary and permanent disability benefits, but the WCAB reversed that decision, pointing out that the heart trouble did not arise out of Soby's job.

The Appellate Court overrulled the WCAB, presuming that heart trouble had developed during employment. That decision paved the way for awards to police and firemen after retirement and to their dependents after death. A fireman who worked for the department for 20 years and retired at age 40 could have a heart attack at age 60, claim "cumulative trauma" and still collect benefits.

A bill recently passed by the state legislature at the request of the State Compensation Insurance Fund and other insurers provides them with some relief from these long-term claims. The law limits a carrier's liability to five years preceding either the date of injury or the last date on which the employee was employed in an occupation exposing him to the hazards of occupational disease or cumulative injury, whichever occurs first.

A law that took effect Jan. 1, 1978 collapses the period of liability from five years to one year by Jan. 1, 1981.

Since 1967, we have invited Lucky customers to make shopping comparison tests. These customers, selected strictly at random at various Lucky Stores, have shopped from their own shopping lists. Having shopped at Lucky, they also purchased the same or comparable items (from the same shopping list) at a nearby supermarket . . . and then compared the results! With very few exceptions, these shopping tests have confirmed that Lucky shoppers save more on their food purchases. In the interests of complete fairness, we also have the results notarized.

These days, it's good to know that Lucky still committed to offering low everyday discount prices to help reduce weekly food bills . . . rather than playing games with your food dollars. Take advantage of Lucky's committment and see how you can save, too!

Morton Lowry, manager of Anthony Enterprises' retail party and gift store in San Francisco, was so delighted with the family-style dinner at NEW SAN REMO in San Francisco's North Beach that he gave co-owner and host FRANK ROMAGUERA one of the store's top-selling items: a desk plaque that reads "My mind is made up. Council Meet Changes Urge Earlier Time for Public Pacifica Mayor Nick Gust has introduced some procedural changes for City Council meetings in an effort to make the sessions more pleasant for both the audience and the council.

He suggests:

• Scheduling study sessions for one-half hour longer before each council meeting, to allow the council more time to question the staff.

• Moving the "oral communications" portion of the meeting to the beginning of the evening, so that citizens don't have to wait until 10:45 p.m. to have their say. He proposed allowing 15 minutes for oral communications.

• Distributing information with council agendas on the language required for making motions.

• Investigating the use of microphones that hang from a strap wrapped around the neck, to allow council members to move more freely.

• Moving council meetings to different parts of town.

The council accepted most of Gust's suggestions enthusiastically, but vetoed the idea of scheduling council meetings in different places.

Resident Donna Starr said the meetings may be televised only from the council chambers.

The council decided to hold two town hall meetings instead, one in the northern part of the city and one in the south.

Councilwoman Eleanor McGuire objected to extending the study session to one hour, noting that the public might think the council was trying to decide all its votes before the regular meeting began.

She also expressed concern about limiting oral communications to 15 minutes.

In addition, Mrs. McGuire asked if the television lights could be dimmed during meetings since they give her a headache.

Councilman Stanley Farber agreed that the lights are "cruel and unusual punishment."

Councilman Fred Howard said the lights make it difficult for the mayor to recognize persons wishing to speak from the audience.

Mayor Gust agreed, saying the lights "burn your eyeballs."

But Mrs. Starr, who is responsible for the lights, said, "If anything, the lights should be stronger."

Solar Energy Clouded Issue

More emphasis on indoor recreational facilities and less on solar energy are among the points recommended in four reports presented this week to the Pacifica City Council by the designer of the city's new general plan.

The reports outline objectives for the city which seem idyllic, but Robert Ironside of Ironside and Associates explained that they were written with federal and state requirements in mind. Failure to meet those standards could result in a loss of government handouts, he said.

The reports emphasize preservation of the city's open spaces, protecting natural resources and improving greenbelt areas by adding more foliage.

They play down the importance of solar energy in Pacifica, where the weather is often overcast and foggy. One report says it will take 25 years before a solar energy installation in the city would pay off.

The cool climate makes it essential for the city to add more indoor recreational areas, the reports declare.

They further recommend:

• More trees in the Rockaway Beach, Fairway Park, Pacific Manor and Fairmont areas.

• Preservation of playground areas, particularly in neighborhoods where schools are closed.

• Acquisition of public right-of-ways to the coast through privately-owned coastal lands.

• Encouraging families with higher incomes to move to Pacifica.

• A better corporation yard for storing and maintaining city vehicles.

• More office and parking space for the police department.

• Additional water storage area.

• A new City Hall with room for expansion.

The council decided to withhold extensive discussion on the reports until the next study session on the general plan in April.

Briefing Session Set on ABAG Environment Plan

"Can San Mateo County Survive the ABAG Plan?" will be the focus of a "briefing session" from 2 to 4 p.m. April 12 in the Pasha Room of the Burlingame Hyatt House.

The Environmental Management Plan referred to is a $4.3 million effort led by the Association of Bay Area Governments and mandated by state and federal laws.

The panelists for the session will be Marguerite Leipzig, Redwood City mayor and chairwoman of the San Mateo County Council of Mayors; Pacifica City Manager Donald Weidner; Charles Kinney, general counsel of the Associated Building Industry; and Joseph Joiner, a land-use attorney with the firm of Watson and Joiner in San Francisco.

Sponsoring the free session are the Associated Building Industry of Northern California, Concerned Citizens Coalition, San Mateo County Builders Exchange, San Mateo County Development Association and the Associated Roofing Contractors of the Bay Area counties.

The panel will examine the cost of the plan, potential job loss, effects on land use and development and the possible creation of more government, according to a spokesman.

Van Show Returns To Center

The Westlake Center in Daly City will sponsor a third annual Customized Van Show and Competition on the Mall at the center April 8 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Attracting over 60 of California's top show vans, this event has become one of the largest shopping center shows in Northern California. Trophies will be awarded to the best vans in many categories including Best of Show, Best Interior Design, Best Exterior Graphics and Best Home Built.

A special award will allow Westlake shoppers and guests to vote for their favorite van. The "Peoples' Choice Award" will be presented to the owner of the van chosen by ballot as the most popular van among the attending public.

The event is free and open to the public.

St. Andrews' Has 'Holocaust' Talks

St. Andrew's Adult Education Committee will sponsor a special series on the Nazi holocaust in which six million Jews were put to death. The lectures, arranged through the combined efforts of St. Andrew's and the Anti-Defamation League, will be on consecutive Mondays, April 17, 24 and May 1, 8 and 15 from 8 to 9:30 p.m. at St. Andrew's Church, Sullivan and Southgate, Daly City.

The purpose of the program is to increase awareness of the Christian commitment to preventing a tragedy such as the holocaust from ever recurring.

On April 17, Larry Moses, director of Hillel at San Francico State University, will speak on the "Rise of Nazism" and show the film "Nazi Germany: Years of Triumph."

On April 24, Louis Berger, a survivor of Auschwitz, will speak on "The Holocaust" and show the film "Night and Fog."

Speakers May 1 on "Resistance: Jewish and Christian" will be Lily Fetter, the daughter of Auchwitz survivors, and Genetta Sagan, a member of the Italian resistance who was captured and tortured by the Gestapo.

On May 8, "Lessons for Today" will feature films from "CBS '60 Minutes'," "Judgment at Mineola" and "QB VII," moderated by Alan Rosenberg, program director of the Anti-Defamation League.

The concluding lecture May 15 will be "Roots of the Holocaust (Reflections on Jewish-Christian Relations)," presented by Sister Christine Athans, an expert in Jewish-Christian relations, who has been director of the North Phoenix corporate ministry.

O.J.'s Value to 49ers Can't Be Overestimated

Le Pacini

It's the Warrior's turn for a blockbuster trade. First the Giants got Vida Blue, now the 49ers have acquired O.J. Simpson, and my, how the Warriors can use a power forward.

As in the Blue trade, the 49ers, in latching onto Simpson, got not only a great athlete, but a drawing card with local name identification. And, as in the Blue trade, what the 49ers gain from Simpson psychologically may be almost as valuable as what they gain from him physically.

SOME of the critics of the Simpson trade are not Jim Plunkett fans. They feel the 49ers now have expended the draft choices they might have used to replace Plunkett, their feeling being that a quarterback is more important to the success of a team than a running back.

But Simpson is not just a running back, and in fact, when he was with Buffalo, was the quarterback on that team more important to the offense than Simpson? The fact is that with O.J. in there, Plunkett's importance now is diminished; his need to pass lessened. And under those conditions, Plunkett might be able to function ably, if not star.

An O.J. Simpson in the backfield removes pressure at many points.

SIMPSON'S appearance on the scene now seems to make Delvin Williams expendable. Luckily, Joe Thomas did not have to throw Williams into the trade, as was rumored several weeks ago. Williams is one of the NFL's better running backs and could bring in the one or two sturdy offensive limemen that even an O.J. Simpson needs to operate at full efficiency.

Thomas also managed to keep this year's number one draft choice. If he can come up with a bright defensive back, then maybe, like the Giants, the 49ers' future could be 1978.

ONE OF the least publicized dynasties in local prep sports belongs to Jefferson High, which has dominated badminton in the North Peninsula League for the past five years, having taken five consecutive championships with relative ease, and once again, as this is written, breezing through the NPL.

The Jeff girls are so good that at a recent match with another Peninsula school, one of the opposing players asked Jeff veteran Sue Saunders what their secret was; if they were on some kind of special weight program, or something.

The answer was no. Jeff Kids don't do anything that the other teams don't do, except win. As a matter of fact, there may be more girls on the Jeff badminton team holding down outside jobs, student body offices, editorial positions on school publications, etc., than kids on any of the other teams.

THEY EVEN have a rookie coach this year, former Skyline, San Jose State and USF super athlete Theresa Ribera, who, after an apprenticeship as a student teacher at Westmoor, has taken on the formidable task of replacing the lady who started the dynasty, Niki Fisher.

Fisher was undefeated in her entire five-year career as a badminton coach at Jeff. A bad back and doctor's orders have retired her from that aspect of her physical education career, but she evidently grounded her charges so well in the good old fundamentals (11 vets returned for this season), that the tradition is carrying on.

If the Jeff kids have anything that the players from other teams don't have, it's confidence and knowing HOW to win, or, perhaps more to the point, NOT knowing how to lose.

IT'S THE old cliche, the momentum effect. Establish yourself as winners, as the great Yankee and Celtic and Notre Dame and other dynasties have, and you feel like a winner. And, of course, potentially superior opponents feel like losers and are whipped before the game ever begins.

And, of course, behind every successful woman, there's a successful man. Fisher is the wife of former Terra Nova football and current track coach Bob Fisher, and Ribera is the daughter of former track whiz Ernie Ribera, an assistant superintendent in the Jefferson School District; and the baby sister of a whole gaggle of Ribera brothers who have run opponents into the ground from Oceana High School to Annapolis to Notre Dame and all points east and west.

GUEST SPEAKERS for the month of April for head baseball coach Al Figone's baseball program at San Francisco State are: April 14, Dario Lodigiani, White Sox scout, on the importance of player attitude; April 21, Curt Flood, the former Cardinal all-star outfielder who is the granddaddy of the cracking of the reserve clause, on outfield play; April 28, Jefferson High Coach Bob Brandi on high school team defense.

All meetings will be at 9 a.m. in room 217 of the gym building, and the public is invited.

RANDOM THOUGHTS: I was shocked several weeks ago when so many members of both the print and electronic media expressed surprise when they learned that the disposition of Candlestick Park is completely in the hands of the San Francico Park and Recreation Commission and that the posturing supervisors have no say in the matter except to give recommendations which can be summarily ignored.

One local dummy sports telecaster even came on one night with what he hinted was an exclusive on the Candlestick matter, as if he had dug this information up as the result of some hot investigative reporting.

I've always known that the Park and Recreation commission had the last word on what went on at Candlestick, and have always assumed that any average fan knew it, that it was general knowledge. After doing some checking with average fans, I discovered that I was right.

HAD I known that, as a sports columnist, I had knowledge of such esoteric information that apparently wasn't available to my colleagues, think of the scoop I could have had!

Sports
And Recreation

I still get upset with the clods who insist that the Yankees have somehow always, in some devious way, managed to "buy" pennants. I've got news for you clods. There have been very few sports championships that haven't been "bought" in some way, from the college level (and in some cases, which I could discuss with you personally, if you wish, at the high school level) to the Yankee level.

Of course, it all depends on what you mean by "bought." There are many ways to buy things. You can do it with money, or promises, or just plain good management.

Basketball's Still King in the PPSL

By JOHN MURPHY

It's sudden death overtime in the Peninsula Parochial School League fifth grade championship game between St. Matthew's and Our Lady of Angels.

Our Lady of Angels center Chris Spagnoli steps to the line with the score tied 17-17. Two points will win the game for either team, and Spagnoli's first shot hits all net.

Spagnoli's second shot also seems to be on target and the OLA throng yells their approval as the ball enters the hoop. But the shot dips in and out, and St. Matthew's grabs the rebound.

The ball moves around the perimeter of OLA's zone defense until guard Eric Pontacq finds an open lane to the hoop. But Pontacq is cut off by an OLA defender as he enters the key and he has to pass off to teammate Dave Stevens in the corner.

Stevens, who has not scored a point the entire game, swishes the open shot and St. Matthew's wins in double overtime. Pandemonium!

This is grammar school basketball — PPSL style. And this game was not unique Sunday at Serra High as the Northern and Southern Division vied on five different grade levels.

The PPSL is a highly organized league with nine teams in each division. The style of play is disciplined and the games are pressurized and exciting. They are also very well attended.

The championship games at Serra are the culmination of four months of practice, league play and divisional playoffs.

The league began in 1945 with six teams. It has grown tremendously in size since then but its participants still compete in only three sports — baseball, basketball and track and field.

Girls have also begun competing recently. They have four sports — softball, volleyball, basketball and track.

But basketball is king in the PPSL.

Unlike public school leagues, the PPSL depends on volunteers both to organize the league and to coach the various teams.

Jim Knecht was more or less a pioneer in the develoment of the league, which is now under the supervision of president Ray Herold.

Parents are involved in the league to a great extent, both as spectators and coaches. It is not at all unusual for a father to be coaching his own son.

A good example is St. Matthew's fifth grade team. The head coach is Pete Pontacq (varsity basketball coach at Aragon High), whose son Eric led all scorers Sunday against OLA with 12 points.

St. Matthew's assistant coach is Dave Stevens (varsity baseball coach at Serra) whose son Dave Jr. made the game-winning basket.

Pontacq is a staunch supporter of the PPSL. This is the second year that he has been involved with it, and he feels that it has a lot more to offer than the public school programs in the area.

"I think that many of the kids in the public schools are getting shortchanged. If a kid goes through the PPSL from the fourth grade on he will have played about 70 games by the time he's through. But many public school kids are fortunate if they've played 15 or 20 games by the time they get to high school," Pontacq said.

The Aragon mentor also feels that the win-at-all-cost attitude which plagues many youth leagues is not prevalent in the PPSL.

"It's not a pressure, do-or-die type thing," Pontacq said. "Our game today was a good example. That was a tough loss for OLA to take, but their kids handled themselves beautifully. I'd be proud if my high school kids at Aragon could handle themselves that well after a tough loss.

"And what is is a reflection on the people who are handling these youngsters and the way that things are run in this league. Maybe you noticed that OLA's trophy was just as big as ours and that when they were awarded the trophy they were announced as 'Champions of the Northern Division' and not second place in the PPSL."

The PPSL has produced a lot of great athletes in recent years. Names like John Caselli, Buzz Harnett, Dennis Haskins, Brian Duffy and Paul Fox immediately spring to mind.

But the PPSL's most-publicized alumnus this year has been Capuchino High's All-American basketball player, Mike Mitchell.

This past week Mitchell; a graduate of St. Robert's School in San Bruno, played with the California prep all-stars in games in Ohio and Pennsylvania. He was the only white player on a 12-man squad.

Mitchell began to develop his passion for the game while serving as an undersized ball-boy for his father Tom, who was formerly the Athletic Director at St. Robert's.

By the second grade Mitchell and third grader Dennis Haskins had teamed up to make the St. Robert's fourth grade team a force to be reckened with.

"The coaching that I got at St. Robert's was excellent," remembered Mitchell. "I had Mr. Haskins as a coach. He was good because he had played the game before and he drilled us a lot on fundamentals."

Another prominent local basketball figure who has been impressed with the quality of coaching in the PPSL is Burlingame High coach Frank Firpo, whose son Tony plays for St. Robert's sixth grade.

"The caliber of play in the league is better than what I had anticipated, and the coaching is a big factor," said Firpo. "The teams are generally well-prepared to play. You can see definite offensive patterns being set up instead of having kids running all over the place."

Serra High basketball coach Pat McGlennon, who himself participated in the PPSL and who has coached many graduates of the program at Serra, generally concurs with Firpo.

"The average kid that we get out of the PPSL is probably more adaptable to discipline than kids who come out of the public school programs," McGlennon said.

"Talent-wise, the public school kids might have more individual skills because they've been out on the playground doing their own thing. The kids out of the PPSL, however, are from a more structured background. They've been taught from the start things like zone defense and offensive team play. Also, and this may be hard to back up, but it is my opinion that the kids who come out of the Catholic grammar schools are more hard-nosed and willing to sacrifice."

All is not peaches and cream in the PPSL, however. Like any youth sports organization the league is sometimes plagued by coaches with delusions of grandeur or parents whose tongues are more active than their brains.

"Pressure is sometimes put on the coaches or the referees from parents who are yelling and screaming in the stands," commented McGlennon. "And, the bad part is that these parents are influencing their sons' attitudes toward these people. But then I'm probably only talking about 15 or 20 percent of the parents who act this way."

Crestmoor High basketball coach Bob Thompson, who did a one-year stint as a coach in the PPSL, is generally impressed with the league, but agrees with McGlennon that the parents do get out of hand at times.

"The parent participation is outstanding in the PPSL. The parents really seem to produce a lot of enthusiasm. Of course there are always those parents in the stands — and you can hear them — who are more concerned with the final tally on the scoreboard than with what their children are learning," Thompson stated.

Thompson also admits that there is a small percentage of coaches that puts undue pressure on their players.

"Some coaches who I have observed on the younger level put unreasonable demands on their players. The way that they conduct themselves on the bench is totally uncalled for. I feel that in the younger grades coaches should be striving more for the development of the kid than anything else."

But although Thompson realizes that the league has its drawbacks, he still holds it in high esteem.

"It disappoints me that the public schools don't have elementary school leagues like this. If I had a son who was interested in sports I certainly wouldn't hesitate to send him to a Catholic grammar school."

THEY'RE YOUNG, BUT INTENSE

Sunday's championship games at Serra High wrapped up four months of basketball in the Peninsula Parochial School League, a highly-organized setup with nine teams in each of several divisions. The PPSL has been, over the years, a training ground for some of the area's best-known players and coaches (including Capuchino's Mike Mitchell). The league has been lauded; play is discipline, intense. Players come into high school with a reputation for being hard-nosed but adaptable, coachable. Does the intensity of play lead to undue pressure on the players? No — in most cases — say observers. Above, a coach suffers over the turn of events.

Dolphins Parents To Meet

The Daly City Dolphhins Parents' Club Board of Directors will meet Thursday at the home of Mrs. Judy Babin, 134 Edgemont Drive, Daly City, at 8:15 p.m.

The April 29 Bake Sale at Tanforan Shopping Center will be among the items on the agenda, according to Club President Mrs. Terry DeMartini.

FRIDAY at 5 p.m. the Dolphins will host the San Francisco Boys Club for a dual meet at Westmoor High School Pool.

A potluck dinner for all swim team members and their parents is scheduled for 7:15 p.m. at the Westmoor Park Clubhouse with Mrs. Mary Carey in charge of arrangements.

An Officials Clinic for local parents to learn to conduct an AAU-sanctioned swim meet, such as the one the Dolphins will host in September, is scheduled for Saturday from 9 a.m. to noon in Mountain View. More information is available from Daly City Dolphins Head Coach Chip Zimmerman.

ALL SWIMMERS in the recent Dolph-a-thon, a club fund-raising project, who have turned in their pledge monies, will tour Shakey's Pizza, 87th Avenue and Junipero Serra Boulevard, April 10 or April 12.

7 Dolphins Finish

Seven swimmers added to the team record of a 1½-mile minimum distance in the recent "delayed" Daly City Dolph-a-thon at Westmoor Pool for those swimmers who were ill during the regular Dolph-a-thon.

"Gabby" Babin and Ruth Lamsam completed the full 200 laps, swimming for sponsors, to raise money to support the team.

Anna Pilch and Marco Madriz each completed 186 laps, over two miles. Carolyn Heard completed 172 laps. Xenia Pilch completed 160 laps and Wilford Rose completed 104 laps.

The Daly City Dolphins are co-sponsored by the Daly City Department of Recreation and have tryouts daily at 5 p.m. at Westmoor Pool, for any youngsters, no minimum age, who can swim two laps of the pool using any stroke

Viewers of this morning's edition of Ann Fraser and The Morning Show on Channel 5 should be alert to the fact that some of the members of the audience may be friends or neighbors.

Mrs. Emily Powell Sumrall, president of the Balboa Alumni Association, pens a note to the effect that a contingent of north peninsula residents have been invited to meet fellow graduates of the high school to form a cheering section during this morning's telecast. The object of the gathering is to publicize the school's Golden Anniversary which is being observed throughout 1978.

MEMBERS of the alumni group will be wearing Balboa sweat shirts, T-shits, senior sweaters, Block B sweaters or combinations of orange and navy blue. If you still are in doubt as to which is the Balboa group, they will be the ones with orange and blue pom-pons!

Two of the anniversary events which will be discussed during the telecast are the Jubilee Year Dinner-Dance May 20 at the San Mateo Elks Club and the Night at the Races this Saturday at Bay Meadows Race Track. Tune into the The Morning Show for more details.

A DAY-LONG visit to the historic and very lovely Monterey Peninsula is planned for tomorrow by the members of the Daly City Senior Citizens Club.

Mrs. Louise Buttle, publicity chairman for the group, reports that this is the second bus tour sponsored by the club this month.

Tickets still are available for the St. Andrew's Community sponsored fashion show and dessert, "My Fair Lady."

Sister Doreen Healy of the St. Andrew's Adult Education program, indicates that tickets can be puchased for $5 by visiting the St. Andrews office, 1571 Southgate Ave., Daly City.

Fashions will be by Beeline Fashions and the desserts will be contributed by guests and friends of the parish. The show will begin at 1 p m April 15. and anyone wishing to contribute a dessert for the event should bring the donation, along with a copy of the recipe, to the community's center on Southgate before noon that day.

THE MARY'S Help Hospital Guild's Christmas Boutique kick-off party, featuring lasagna and bingo, will be April 19 in the Westlake Community Center.

Guests contribute prizes of canned goods, buy luncheon tickets for $4 per person, bring along odds and ends from their mending and sewing baskets and have a delightful time eating and playing games while they raise money and collect materials to be used in preparations for the huge boutique sponsored each November to raise funds for Mary's Help Hospital expansion and improvement.

For more information call Mrs. Fran Gaffigan. To make a contribution to the prize table call Mrs. Gerry Calderwood.

Good morning, good cooks.

It is no wonder Italians love pasta. It's delicious, hearty, easy to prepare and so very versatile. Two main types of pasta are found in Italy today. Pasta bolognese, produced in the north, generally is flat and ribbon shaped. Prepared and cooked fresh at home, it usually is made with eggs. In the south of Italy the pasta resembles closely what we have in the United States. Pasta napolitana in tubular, made without eggs and purchased in a dried form.

One of the most popular forms of pasta bolognese is fettucine. Its classic preparation with butter, cream and Parmesan cheese is called Fettucine Alfredo. Create a senational budget variation of this famous dish by adding chopped cooked ham, black olives and seasonings.

A good crisp salad is a must with pasta. Add sliced cooked eggs for extra taste, nutrition and eye appeal. End your meal the Italian way, with fresh fruit.

FETTUCINE DE PARMA

1 box (8 ounces) medium egg noodles
⅓ cup heavy cream
1 egg yolk
¼ cup margarine, melted
¼ pound (one cup) freshly grated Parmesan cheese
¾ cup (¼ pound) chopped cooked ham
⅓ cup sliced pitted ripe black olives
2 tablespoons chopped parsley.

Cook the noodles according to package directions.

Meanwhile, beat together the half-cup cream and egg yolk. Stir in the fourth-cup melted margarine. Drain the noodles. Combine noodles, cream mixture, one cup grated Parmesan cheese, three-fourths cup cooked ham, half-cup olives and two tablespoons parsley. Toss gently until ingredients are well distributed. Serve immediately.

Makes three generous servings.

By LUANA JEFFRIES

We are starting an Alumni Association at Jefferson High School, but we need the names and addresses of alumni. We would like to stress that there is no money involved.

All the alumni get (for now) is a newsletter to get the old alumni reacquainted with their alma mater. An alumni association is a way for old classmates to get in touch with each other and to renew old friendships.

For those of you who would like to recap some of the memories of those high school years, the address to send names and addresses is: Jefferson Student Government, 6996 Mission St., Daly City, 94014.

Remember — don't just send your address — send those of alumni that you know! All are welcome to join!

SINCE March 17, the Friday before Easter vacation was so warm Jeff students decided that they would have some fun with buckets of water, water balloons, and eggs. At first it was just the buckets and balloons and the students didn't care who they threw them on. By lunchtime no more buckets or balloons were around because all the drinking fountains were turned off. So, since it was lunchtime, they went home and brought back eggs. Some students were suspended for the water, but even more were suspended for the eggs.

VICA had a spring dance last Friday in the cafeteria, featuring Common Pleasure. There was to be a karate exhibition by John Perrerra during a break, but the students complained about turning on the lights so much that they decided against it. There were door prizes and a drawing. This was VICA's first dance and the money went toward the trip that the club is making to San Diego for the statewide VICA competition, after sending 14 people to the district competition and coming back with 13 gold medals.

THE SCHOOL rings everyone has been waiting for arrived March 29. All sophomores, juniors and seniors who ordered rings were able to pick them up.

GOLF is not one of the most popular sports at Jeff but it is a very demanding sport. Well, you'd think it would take almost nothing to hit a ball into a little hole, but it takes skill, coordination, concentration and lots and lots of patience. Our team showed just that March 28 when the first game of the season was played at the Lake Merced Golf and Country Club. Though Terra Nova won by a hair, we maintained a sportsman-like attitude toward the opposition — a quality appreciated. And we appreciate our team for being such good players. Good luck, guys!

Help Wanted

The following agencies have requested volunteer assistance from the Volunteer Bureau—Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County, with offices in Burlingame, Daly City and Redwood City.

MENTAL HEALTH ASSOCIATION — Volunteers are needed for the Friendship Centers, which are a social rehabilitation program for individuals with mental or emotional difficulties. Volunteers assist in providing a supportive atmosphere in which social and recreational skills can be practiced. The centers are located throughout the county at various times and days.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO BOYS' CLUB — Tutors are needed to work with sixth-grade students on a one-to-one basis in remedial reading. The sessions are from 3 to 4 p.m. Tuesday and Thursday. Youths and adults are welcome.

SPECIAL OLYMPICS — Many more volunteers are needed for this one-day athletic event for mentally retarded children and young adults at Mills High School in Millbrae, April 22. Over 200 volunteers are needed that day as guides and assisting with track, field, swimming, gymnastics or basketball.

AMERICAN RED CROSS — Office assistance is needed for 3-4 hours a week to answer telephones, light typing, make referrals and greet visitors. Training will be provided. In addition, a publicity chairman is needed to assist with various types of public relations. A background would be necessary for this position.

Additional information about these and other volunteer opportunities may be obtained by contacting the Volunteer Bureau in Daly City at 364-7770, an answering service. Residents also may contact the main office in Burlingame at 342-0801, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday, at 119 Primrose Road. Interviews will be made in Daly City by appointment. A project of the Assistance League of San Mateo County, the Bureau shares in the United Way of the Bay Area and is funded in part by the County of San Mateo.

For students interested in volunteer positions there is a volunteer office on the campuses of College of San Mateo and Canada College.
